FELLOW NUMISMATISTS:—

Welcome to our Numismatic Commentary and Mail Auction Sale No. 64, our 20th auction since moving our offices to Madison. For some reason we still receive occasional mailings sent to our old Hoboken address!

Speaking of addresses, we have been most pleased to note mail from an ever increasing number of non U.S. countries and cities appearing in our Post Office drawer in response to our auction sales. In the past twelve months numismatists from over 50 foreign countries have participated in our auction sales both as bidders and as consignors, and this is not counting several countries from which, thus far, we have had only unsuccessful bids.

Numismatics is becoming more and more an international market with collectors from many nations providing legitimate price support for their own national coinage. While this has been true for many years in the U.S.A., Great Britain, and many of the major Western European countries, it is only recently that collectors in many Asian, African, Oceanic, and Hispanic countries have been consistently out-bidding the traditional "foreign" collectors in America and England in an effort to bring their coinage back to their own shores. We welcome this trend and welcome this participation in our auctions. It seems to us that such circles of active collectors in many nations must lead to a more healthy and stable market than the boom and bust speculative pushes given in the past to momentarily "popular" countries. As for collectors of a given coinage who are not resident in the country of origin — they must now be prepared to cope with greatly increased home country competition for many series and bid accordingly if they wish to continue to add to their collections.

Three articles also appear in this issue of Numismatic Commentary. The first is a continuation of our updating and illustration of the Kardakoff catalog of Russian Paper Money. The auction also contains a wide range of Russian banknotes from many eras and areas.

The second article, by the noted Finnish collector Eric Johanson, explains a number of the attractive Finnish campaign and service medals. The third article begins what will be a series dealing with the numismatic issues of Sarawak.

Our next sale will be in conjunction with the Sixth New York International Numismatic Convention at the Americana Hotel in New York City, December 9-11, 1977. At that time we will offer the collection of Governor Charles Edison of New Jersey, the son of Thomas Alva Edison. The collection, primarily 19th century dollars and half dollars of the world, features strong Germanic and Chinese sections, but there are also choice offerings from Scandinavia, the Italian States, the Low Countries, Eastern Europe, and many other areas. It has been a pleasure to catalog and present this collection, locked away in bank vaults for many years, and return it to circulation among the collectors of the world. Catalogs will be in the mails in early November.

A final footnote: It appears to be a truism that collectors are collectors no matter what they collect. We have a personal interest in old and obsolete metal beer cans (bier dosen, lata de cerveza) of the world, particularly the old cap sealed spout top cans, but also other unusual cans. If any of our readers have such cans which they are willing to part with, we would be interested in hearing from you.

ALL THE BEST

BRAZIL

A SELECTION FROM THE THOMAS FAISTAUER COLLECTION OF LUSO-BRAZILIAN COUNTERMARKED SILVER COINS

After the restoration of an independent Portuguese monarchy in 1640, Portugal found herself with a national treasury that was almost empty. The colonial treasuries were empty as well.

King John IV needed money. His overseas colonies were being threatened by the British and the Dutch; he had to solidify his position at home and prevent Philip III (IV of Spain) from making a comeback attempt. For all these things he needed cash.

Raising the value of the coinage in circulation seemed to be one way of raising funds. By decree of 1642, the coinage was to be countermarked raising its value by 20 per cent. Further decrees followed in 1643, 1652, 1662, 1663, 1668, 1679, 1686, and 1688 creating new countermarks and resulting in one of the most complex countermark series known to numismatics.

The coins used were primarily Portuguese, but coinage from the Spanish New World mints were also countermarked.

The Portuguese coins generally seen countermarked are:

*Half Cruzado - originally 200 Reis
Tostao - originally 100 Reis
LXXX - 80 Reis
Half Tostao - originally 50 Reis*

Some of the decrees were for homeland use only while others covered the colonies. However, many of the coins countermarked for the homeland were later authorized for circulation in the colonies. In addition, many of these coins countermarked in Portugal were later re-countermarked with a still higher value in the colonies. Generally, but not invariably, the colonial countermarks of this period have a crown while the European countermarks do not.

Forgeries do exist of certain of these countermarks, both contemporary and numismatic. Separating the good from the bad is a difficult task. Certain cataloguers have stated that certain styles of crown are false, sometimes with justification, but sometimes out of pique or lack of knowledge.

The situation is complicated by the fact that virtually no two countermarks appear identical. The reason for this is simple.

During the countermark period, roughly from 1642-1690, Portugal had the following mainland and colonial mints and stamping houses in operation:

Lisbon, Oporto, Evora, Baciaim, Chaul, Goa, Ceylon, Bahia, Beja, Braga, Cabo Verde, Castelo Branco, Coimbra, Furo, Lamego, Madeira, Maranhao, Miranda, Rio de Janeiro, Pernambuco, San Miguel, San Tome, Tavira, Terceira, Tomar, Trancoso, Guarda, Lagos, Leiria, Ponta Delgada, Portalegre, Santarem, Malacca, and Torre de Moncorvo, among others.

Not all of these mints countermarked all series of coins, but with that many different mint engravers working, it's easy to see why the countermarks exist in such a profusion of styles. Added to this is the fact that these countermarked dies are all individually engraved rather than made from punches, so two countermark dies by the same engraver at the same stamping house would still not be identical.

We therefore feel that, essentially, the coins have to stand on their own. If they look good and the countermarks make sense historically and mathematically, then they probably are genuine.

In the following listings we refer to both the monarch of the original coin and the monarch by whose edict the countermark was applied. For those not familiar with some of these ruling houses a listing follows:

John III, The Pious, 1521-1557
Sebastian I, The Desired One, 1557-1578
Henry I, The Chaste, 1578-1580
The Governors of the Realm 1580
Antonio I, The Prior of Crato, 1580-1583

Philip III (Philip IV of Spain), The Great, 1621-1640
John IV, The Restorer, 1640-1656
Alfonso VI, The Victorious, 1656-1667

Imperial State Assignats - 2nd Series

Alexander I 1801-1825

The old style Assignats were replaced with notes of a more complex format in 1818 in order to make them more difficult to counterfeit. The new notes featured an ornamental border differing for each denomination, framing a long printed inscription. The design is topped by the imperial eagle. The notes are watermarked with the date and the denomination both in numerals and in cyrillic. Only two denominations were traced for 1818, with the full run of values appearing the following year.

SOME NOTES ON THE COINS OF SARAWAK

William Wallace Brooke Christensen

Part One

When James Brooke arrived in Sarawak no doubt he found a rather polyglot assortment of currency in local circulation. There would have been a certain amount of native tin coinage from Brunei and Malaya, a few stray Chinese cash, some East India Company issues, and, undoubtedly, in some of the more remote areas, Brunei bronze hand cannon were still used to purchase brides. The two principal media of exchange, however, were both from foreign sources: The Spanish milled dollar and the Singapore keping merchants' tokens.

The Spanish dollar, actually the silver Eight Reales piece from the colonial mints in the Americas, was introduced to the Orient in the latter part of the 16th Century. Once the Portuguese were established in Malacca and the Spaniards in Manila the goods of the East moved west and were paid for with silver pesos or ocho reales pieces from the rich mines of Mexico and Peru. The first such dollars to reach the East were crude ingots of standard weight and fineness stamped on the obverse with the great shield of Spain and on the reverse with the quartered arms of Castille and Leon. In Spanish this type of crude coinage was called macuquina derived from an Arabic word meaning lump; in English they were called cobs - also a term meaning lump; in Malay they were termed Real Batu.

With the advent of improved mint machinery in 1732 the Spanish American milled dollar became the standard coin of Asia for the next 200 years. In 1823 the Spanish American dollar, soon to be supplanted by the Mexican Republican 8 Reales pieces of the same size, weight, and fineness, was made the legal tender standard of value in Singapore. In 1841 James Brooke adopted the Singapore dollar standard for Sarawak, and the Mexican Ocho Reales piece had unlimited legal tender in Sarawak until the advent of the Straits Settlements Dollar in 1903. The 8 Reales piece from the various Mexican mints, hypothetically divided into 100 cents in the Malayan area, was the unit of account upon which all local coinage and stamps were based and with which all major business was transacted.

The second major currency of Sarawak in 1841 was the small copper keping or doít issued by the Singapore merchants and used extensively in Malaya, Sumatra, and Borneo. While the Spanish dollar served admirably for substantial transactions, the entire Malayan area suffered from a chronic shortage of the minor change necessary for small purchases. East India Company issues for Penang and Sumatra and the minor coinage of the Dutch East Indian colonies partially filled this void, but there was never enough.

The Singapore merchants, therefore, took matters into their own hands. Starting in about 1829 they caused tokens to be struck which were, in fact, direct copies of the E.I.C. and Dutch coinage. This filled the need for small change and provided a tidy profit for the issuing merchants.

The Dutch began to complain about the issue of such counterfeit Dutch coinage, and legal steps were taken. The merchants, therefore, began to evolve distinctive designs for their keplings which did not infringe upon any government authority's coinage prerogative.

One of the standard types used bore a depiction of a fighting cock. Others bore legends attributing them to various spots in Malaya, the Celebes, etc.

The keplings are interesting as well in that they were a true commodity coin, with no fixed rate of exchange. During the great token issuing period from about 1835 to 1853 the rate fluctuated between roughly 350 and roughly 1000 to the dollar.

When James Brooke established himself in Sarawak he no doubt found the channels of commerce awash with merchants keplings inscribed for such areas as the ISLAND OF SUMATRA, ISLAND OF SULTANA, etc. plus innumerable anonymous doits. Self pride and perhaps profit motivated Brooke to issue his own keping, proclaiming his sovereignty over Sarawak. This resulted in James Brooke's keping, the first coin that Sarawak can truly call her own. Certain numismatic writers have maintained that the Sarawak keping is just another Singapore merchants doít and not a coin at all. This is most emphatically not the case. In the first place the Rajah would have taken a dim view of someone else placing Brooke's initials on a token. In the second place we now know that the Sarawak keping was given full currency status by an act of the Rajah in council of March, 1842.

Only two issuers of keplings put their names or initials on their coins: C.R. Read, head of the Singapore bazaar, and James Brooke. Major Pridmore has established that Read's keplings were struck at Boulton & Watt's Soho Mint. It has not been clearly established which one of the Birmingham mints struck the Sarawak Keping. Since it is known that the Reads and Brooke were close friends and maintained an active correspondence it does not seem implausible that Brooke would seek the advice of his Singapore friends and perhaps also had his keping struck at the Soho Mint.

The Sarawak keping is 21.50 mm in diameter and weighs an average of about 1.95 grams. It occurs struck in both copper and in brass with the latter being rarer.

The obverse shows a badger facing left - the badger or brock being the Brooke family animal badge. Beneath the animal are the initials J.B. and the date SEPT. 24 1841, Rajah Brooke's accession date. The reverse used an old stock keping token die and has the Malay legend which translates to: 1 Satu Keping 1247 AH. The coin has a plain edge. It is a legitimately rare coin and cannot have been made in huge quantities. A trial strike of the keping in White Metal was in the Taffs sale. A few gold plated and silver plated examples of the keping are known. Major Pridmore correctly points out that the pieces were plated after striking using EF or FDC currency specimens. Since currency specimens in such condition are today virtually unknown and since gilt pieces of the 1870 issue were in the Brooke family holdings, it is possible that the gilt keplings were also intended as official presentation pieces. In recent years forgeries of the piece have appeared. They are smaller in diameter and thicker than the originals. The edge beading differs, there is a period after the B of J.B., and there are other distinctions.

In 1845 and in 1862 the East India Company introduced a large copper decimal coinage of 1/4 Cent, 1/2 Cent, and 1 Cent pieces for the Straits Settlements. All had the bust of Victoria facing left on the obverse. The 1845 coinage had the reverse legend EAST INDIA COMPANY, and the 1862 coinage had the reverse legend INDIA - STRAITS. This coinage was fully acceptable and circulated extensively in Sarawak. In 1863 Rajah Brooke decided that he wanted a copper decimal coinage with his own portrait to supplant that of the Straits Settlements. Accordingly, contracts were let with Ralph Heaton and Sons, The Mint, Birmingham for a coinage of Copper Cents, Half Cents, and Quarter Cents of the same size and weight as the Straits issues. The obverse of the coins featured a bust of James Brooke facing left with the legend J.BROOKE RAJAH. The reverse has the denomination within a wreath of olive branches with SARAWAK above and the date 1863 below. The dies for this coinage were engraved by Joseph Moore of Birmingham. Exact mintage figures are not known, but one may surmise from the ratio of appearance and known later mintage data that the numbers struck would be something on the order of 1,000,000 Cents; 250,000 1/2 Cents; and 100,000 1/4 Cents.

The 1 Cent piece is common but scarce as a truly uncirculated coin. The 1/2 Cent is moderately scarce, particularly in better condition. The 1/4 Cent is scarce in any condition.

Proofs exist of all three denominations both in Copper which often has toned to a rainbow hue and in Bronzed Copper. The latter are scarcer. A trial strike in Pewter of the 1/4 Cent is known. It seems likely that similar trial strikes were made for the other denominations, but none have yet been traced.
